

March 15, 2010

Draft Document Not For Publication But For Discussion Purposes Only – Nothing contained herein represents a final position or opinion of the State and Local Advisory Council. Readers should neither rely on any information herein nor make any inferences about final interpretations of member states or the Governing Board from the statements contained herein as this is a draft only and may change in response to comments and input from the public or private sector.

State and Local Advisory Council Sales Price Definition – Employee Points Program

On June 29, 2009 Ms. Loren Chumley filed the interpretation of definition request, RI09007 with the Compliance Review and Interpretations Committee (CRIC). On August 13, 2009 CRIC voted to recommend interpretative opinion 2009-05, IO09005, to the Governing Board. On September 30, 2009 motions to adopt CRIC's recommendation for interpretation of the definition of sales price failed. RI09007 and IO09005 were assigned to the State and Local Advisory Council (SLAC). SLAC is to provide information to CRIC for further consideration of the interpretation of the definition of sales price.

On October 7, 2009 Sherry Harrell held an open discussion call regarding the employee points program and sales price interpretation to give SLAC members and Ms. Chumley an opportunity to ask questions.

On October 26, 2009 Ms. Chumley provided a written response, SL09074, to questions received from SLAC members regarding the employee points program.

On October 27, 2009 Ms. Chumley reviewed SL09074 with SLAC members during the SLAC teleconference meeting. SLAC members had additional questions and Ms. Chumley agreed to provide the additional information.

On February 14, 2010, Ms. Chumley provided an email response, SL10012 to the second set of additional questions from SLAC members.

Background

A revised statement of background facts has been prepared from the additional information provided by Ms. Chumley in response to questions from SLAC members during the October 7th and 27th teleconferences.

As a result of the discussion with SLAC members, Ms. Chumley revised the issues for interpretation. The attached paper includes the 5 issues regarding the interpretation of the definition of sales price.

The Streamlined Sales and Use Tax Agreement, Appendix C, Part I, defines "Sales price" as follows:

"Sales price" applies to the measure subject to sales tax and means the total amount of consideration, including cash, credit, property, and services, for which personal property or services are sold, leased, or rented, valued in money, whether received in money or otherwise, without any deduction for the following:

A. The seller's cost of the property sold;

- B. The cost of materials used, labor or service cost, interest, losses, all costs of transportation to the seller, all taxes imposed on the seller, and any other expense of the seller;
- C. Charges by the seller for any services necessary to complete the sale, other than delivery and installation charges;
- D. Delivery charges;
- E. Installation charges; and
- F. Credit for any trade-in, as determined by state law.

“Sales price” shall not include:

- A. Discounts, including cash, term, or coupons that are not reimbursed by a third party that are allowed by a seller and taken by a purchaser on a sale;
- B. Interest, financing, and carrying charges from credit extended on the sale of personal property or services, if the amount is separately stated on the invoice, bill of sale or similar document given to the purchaser; and
- C. Any taxes legally imposed directly on the consumer that are separately stated on the invoice, bill of sale or similar document given to the purchaser.

“Sales price” shall include consideration received by the seller from third parties if:

- A. The seller actually receives consideration from a party other than the purchaser and the consideration is directly related to a price reduction or discount on the sale;
- B. The seller has an obligation to pass the price reduction or discount through to the purchaser;
- C. The amount of the consideration attributable to the sale is fixed and determinable by the seller at the time of the sale of the item to the purchaser; and
- D. One of the following criteria is met:
 - 1. The purchaser presents a coupon, certificate or other documentation to the seller to claim a price reduction or discount where the coupon, certificate or documentation is authorized, distributed or granted by a third party with the understanding that the third party will reimburse any seller to whom the coupon, certificate or documentation is presented;
 - 2. The purchaser identifies himself or herself to the seller as a member of a group or organization entitled to a price reduction or discount (a “preferred customer” card that is available to any patron does not constitute membership in such a group), or
 - 3. The price reduction or discount is identified as a third party price reduction or discount on the invoice received by the purchaser or on a coupon, certificate or other documentation presented by the purchaser.

States may also exclude from “sales price” either employee discounts that are reimbursed by a third party on sales of motor vehicles, or manufacturer rebates on motor vehicles, or both.

SLAC recommends.....

Revised Statement of Background Facts

Client owns and franchises store locations worldwide and has locations in all of the SST member states. Client sells services and tangible personal property (“TPP”) at its store locations.

Client is starting a program to sell TPP through catalogs and its Website. At this time, the TPP generally consists of tools used in delivering services to customers but Client expects to expand the TPP offerings. Employees, franchisees and the general public may make purchases from Client through a catalog or through the Client’s Website on the internet. Client purchases the inventory on a resale certificate.

Client has implemented an Employee Points Program that serves as an incentive for employees to reach specific goals set by Client’s management. A store is given monthly quotas for “total sales” (total sales equals sales of services and tangible personal property combined) and “total TPP sales” (total TPP sales equals sales of tangible personal property only).

If a store exceeds its total sales quota, an employee will receive one bonus point for every dollar of sales that the employee made that month. If a store exceeds its “total TPP sales” the employee will receive one bonus point for every dollar of sales that the employee made that month. If a store employee exceeds both total sales AND total TPP sales, the employee will receive double the amount of every dollar of sales that the employee made that month. If the store does not exceed either quota, no bonus points will be received.

If a store exceeds the quota for “total sales” the store manager will receive one bonus point for every dollar of the store does in total sales. If a store exceeds the quota for TPP sales, the store manager will receive four bonus points for every dollar of total TPP sales. If the store does not exceed either quota, no bonus points will be received.

A liability is placed on the books of the company at .005 per point. If an employee leaves the company, the employee forfeits all rights to the points and the accrual is reduced. An employee is not permitted to transfer points.

The points accumulated by each employee may be redeemed for cash, travel, or discounts on purchases of TPP sold through catalog or the Website. Neither franchisees nor members of the general public are allowed to purchase or discount TPP (tools) through the use of points.

Redeeming Points for Cash

Client operates retail concepts under different brand names. Only store managers for two of Client’s brand concepts are eligible to redeem points for cash. Store managers at all other retail concepts are not permitted to redeem points for cash. Employees who are not at a manager level at these stores are not entitled to redeem points for cash. Neither managers nor employees at other brand concepts are permitted to redeem points for cash. Non-manager level employees are never permitted to redeem points for cash. The amount of payments to store managers when points are redeemed for cash is included in the employee’s W-2 for federal income tax purposes.

Redeeming Points for Travel

As mentioned above, employees may redeem the points for travel that is arranged by the Client. Client is not in the travel business. Employees may not purchase travel from third parties – but instead may only use the points to defray the costs of participating in a Client-arranged travel excursion. Example: Client purchases from travel company a cruise for 50 people. Client awards top employees with the trip and gives employees option of using points to have spouse accompany employee on cruise. When points are redeemed in this manner, the points are included in the employee's W-2 for federal income tax purposes.

Redeeming Points for Discounts of TPP

An employee may use points to discount the regular price of a tool as shown on the catalog or Website. The points are only available to discount the purchase price of TPP from Client's Website or catalog. Client does not receive consideration from a third party as reimbursement for the discount. Depending on the number of points that an employee redeems, the price could be partially discounted or could be reduced to zero. The value of the points is consistent across the range of products available for point redemption. When an employee uses points to discount the price of TPP from the Client's Website or catalog, there are no federal income tax implications for the employee and the points are NOT included in the W-2 wages of the employee.

Employees, franchisees and members of the general public use the same Website and catalog for purchasing goods from Client. There is a different price list for members of the general public, for employees and for franchisors. The billing system for purchases by employees is the same system that is used for purchases from franchisors and members of the public.

Client charges a separately stated fee for delivery of the TPP. In some cases, the Client may permit an employee to offset the delivery charge by use of the points. In other words, if a tool is $100 and the delivery charge is $10, an employee could use points to offset the $100 but would still have to pay $10 for delivery of the TPP. In some cases, an employee could use points to offset both the $100 plus the $10 delivery charge, in which case the price paid by the employee would be $0.

For purposes of this interpretation request, assume that no entity-based, product or use-based exemptions exist with respect to the purchases of TPP. For purposes of this interpretation request, assume that no services are necessary to complete the sale, no installation charges are made and no trade-in credit is applicable.

Revised Issues:

- 1) Should the points redeemed by the employee be considered a discount in sales price in the sales transaction?
- 2) Do the points redeemed by the employee constitute consideration for the sales transaction?
- 3) Are the points which are allowed by the Client and taken by the employee on the sale considered a discount that is excluded from the sales price of the TPP?
- 4) If the sale is made in a member state that includes delivery charges in the definition of the sales price, is the measure of the tax base subject to sales tax equal to the discounted charge for the TPP (which could be zero) plus the delivery charge (which could be zero)?
- 5) If the sale is made in a member state that excludes delivery charge from the definition of the sales price, and the state does not separately tax delivery charges as a service, is the measure of the tax base subject to sales tax equal to the discounted charge for the TPP (which could be zero)?

Revised Proposed Interpretations:

Option 1

- 1) Employee points redeemed for employee discount on the published price of TPP sold by their employer are considered a discount for purposes of applying the sales price definition in the sales transaction. The seller does not receive consideration from a third party as reimbursement for the discount.
- 2) Employee points redeemed for employee discount on the published price of TPP sold by their employer do not constitute consideration for the sales transaction.
- 3) Based on the facts submitted, the points that are allowed by the Client and taken by the employee as a reduction to the published price of the TPP are considered a discount excluded from the sales price of the TPP.
- 4) If the sale is made in a member state that includes delivery charges in the definition of the sales price, the measure of the tax base subject to sales tax is equal to the discounted charge for the TPP (which could be zero) plus the delivery charge (which could be zero).
- 5) If the sale is made in a member state that excludes delivery charge from the definition of the sales price, and does not separately tax delivery charges as a service, the measure of the tax base subject to sales tax is equal to the discounted charge for the TPP (which could be zero) excluding any separately itemized delivery charges.

Note: Option 1 paragraphs 3, 4, and 5 represents CRIC interpretive opinion prior to SLAC's assignment to research and obtain additional information.. Paragraphs 1 and 2 were added as a result of Ms. Chumley's adding 2 issues to the original interpretation request. Paragraphs 1 and 2 are intended to be consistent with CRIC's original interpretation.

Option 2

- 1) Employee points redeemed for employee discount on the purchase price of TPP by employees that are not permitted to redeem points for cash are considered a discount for purposes of applying the sales price definition in the sales transaction.

Employee points redeemed for employee discount on the purchase price of TPP by employees that are eligible to redeem points for cash are not considered a discount for purposes of applying the sales price definition in the sales transaction.
- 2) The cash equivalent of the employee points redeemed for employee discount on the purchase of TPP by employees that are eligible to redeem points for cash constitute consideration for the sales transaction.
- 3) Based on the facts submitted, the points that are allowed by the Client and taken by the employee as a reduction to the published price of the TPP are considered a discount excluded from the sales price of the TPP if the employee points are not also available for redemption for cash by the employee.

- 4) When the employee points are not also eligible for redemption for cash, and the sale is made in a member state that includes delivery charges in the definition of the sales price, the measure of the tax base subject to sales tax is equal to the discounted charge for the TPP (which could be zero) plus the delivery charge (which could be zero).

When the employee points are eligible for redemption for cash, and the sale is made in a member state that includes delivery charges in the definition of the sales price, the measure of the tax base subject to sales tax is equal to the published price for the TPP plus the delivery charge. The cash equivalent of the employee points redeemed for the purchase price of the TPP is part of the “total amount of the consideration for which the personal property is sold, valued in money, whether received in money or otherwise.”

- 5) When the employee points are not also eligible for redemption for cash, and the sale is made in a member state that excludes delivery charge from the definition of the sales price, and does not separately tax delivery charges as a service, the measure of the tax base subject to sales tax is equal to the discounted charge for the TPP (which could be zero) excluding any separately itemized delivery charges.

When the employee points are eligible for redemption for cash, and the sale is made in a member state that excludes delivery charges from the definition of the sales price, and does not separately tax delivery charges as a service, the measure of the tax base subject to sales tax is equal to the published price for the TPP excluding any separately itemized delivery charges. The cash equivalent of the employee points redeemed for the purchase price of the TPP is part of the “total amount of the consideration for which the personal property is sold, valued in money, whether received in money or otherwise.”